BLINDNESS & IMPAIRED VISION: A MAJOR HEALTH PROBLEM AMONG PEOPLE

Pakistan has the dubious distinction for having the third highest population of blind and visually impaired individuals in the world.

The major cause of this is the inadequate amount spent on health by the Government: 0.49% of GDP versus a minimum requirement of 5%.

Cataract is the main cause of blindness followed by Glaucoma, Age Related Macular Degeneration & Corneal Opacity.

As a consequence 11% of our population suffers from blindness and vision impairment.

3 Million Children are either blind or visually impaired.

Refractive Errors & Cataract are the main causes of impairment visual.

Pakistan is suffering from diabetes as around 17% of the adult population (35 million) suffers from it. 30% of patients have uncontrolled diabetes that later develops into diabetic retinopathy, an irreversible blindness.

KERATOCONUS

Keratoconus is a disease that causes thinning and bulging of the cornea. The cornea gradually turns into a cone-like shape. Any distortion in cornea leads to a distorted image projected onto the retina. Patients with keratoconus are vulnerable to nearsightedness and astigmatism that is not correctable with glasses.

According to a recent study, one in 100 people in Pakistan is suffering from Keratoconus. Due to lack of information and guidance keratoconus is becoming a leading cause of increasing cases of blindness in Pakistan.

Here at Hashmanis Group of hospitals, people with Keratoconus disease come and get it treated by our professional doctors. To this day, a large number of people have been treated successfully.

OCULOPLASTIC SURGERY

Blindness has been the biggest threat to people in underdeveloped countries. Very little attention is paid towards the eradication of blindness.

Infection, Injury, certain eye diseases, malnutrition, iatrogenic diseases, and trauma can lead to Corneal Opacity. People who have met with any kind of accidents in industries, agricultural activities, and during sports are likely to develop corneal opacity. It's a communicable disease as well.

The procedure to rectify Corneal Opacity is known as Oculoplastic surgery and Hashmanis Medical Welfare Foundation possesses the most prominent professional ophthalmologists and Plastic surgeons who treat the patients without charging a penny.
